Autumn 2018

FREDERKING & THALER

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

Finally here it is, our program for autumn 2018. We are very happy to present a beautiful and inspiring new collection of books to you:

National Geographic once again shows readers the most beautiful destinations from different perspectives. Not only Robert Bösch's Mountains is an absolute highlight this autumn!

Frederking & Thaler offers a feast for the eyes: To name but a few new publications, ICELAND presents famous photographer's Hans Strand's amazing photos of an extreme landscape, while Melancholia embarks on a journey to Southern Italy and its forgotten places.

Bruckmann Verlag forthcoming books are all about wanderlust. Readers get to discover the most beautiful islands of the world, dreamland Namibia, the Baltic and many other tempting destinations near and far.

Also Christian Verlag sends us on a journey - albeit into the world of international cuisine: Please join us on our trip from Korea via Tel Aviv to Iceland! Also trending topics like craft spirits, minimalism at home and waste reduction are part of this program. GeraMond's tributes to vintage cars as well as to iconic brand Harley Davidson and the dream job pilot all show us: This must be love!

For our Backlist catalogue please visit our website:

Melancholia

The Spell of a Forgotten World

Sven Fennema, Petra Reski

320 pages, 29 x 37 cm, ~ 200 images

Hardcover

Retail price: €98

Publication date: October 2018

Word count: approx. 12,500

The attraction of forgotten worlds

Photographer Sven Fennema discovered new, unknown locations on his search for forgotten places. After his best-selling “Nostalgia” about Northern Italy, he now embarks on a journey to Southern Italy and the forgotten, mouldering places that once glittered in the landscape as stylish country houses, majestic halls and imposing factories.

Abandoned mountain villages, gloomy graveyards, mental hospitals – these new, spectacular images reveal the morbid charm of Italy.

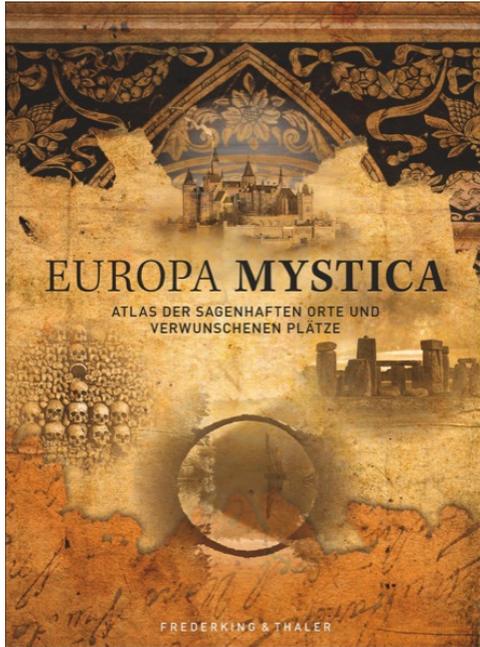

Sven Fennema, born in 1981, has been a self-taught photographer since 2007 and has been represented in national and international exhibitions and publications since 2009. His extensive travels have taken him to abandoned places throughout Europe. For “Melancholia”, he explored the south of Italy in depth. His artistic works are also represented by Lumas Gallery. He lives in Krefeld.

Petra Reski is a journalist and writer and lives in Venice. Italy has been her subject since 1989, captured in features and guides, but also in novels; the Mafia is a central topic of her Palermo-based series of crime novels.

- The sequel to the best-selling “Nostalgia”
- Powerful, moving new photos
- Accompanied by perceptive texts by Petra Reski

Creation and Decline

As a natural landscape, the Alps are often described as “unspoilt” – ignoring the fact that for millennia, even these mountains at the very heart of Europe have been home to human settlers who made the best use of their environment. Farmers, traders, armies and tourism have all left their traces on these mountains. These are human creations, hewn from the same stone as the peaks that surround them, carved defiantly from nature in human toil and later abandoned to decay. In these epic photographs, Stefan Hefele traces this world of decline, taking us on a journey to abandoned villages, ancient war paths, and industrial and tourist ruins.

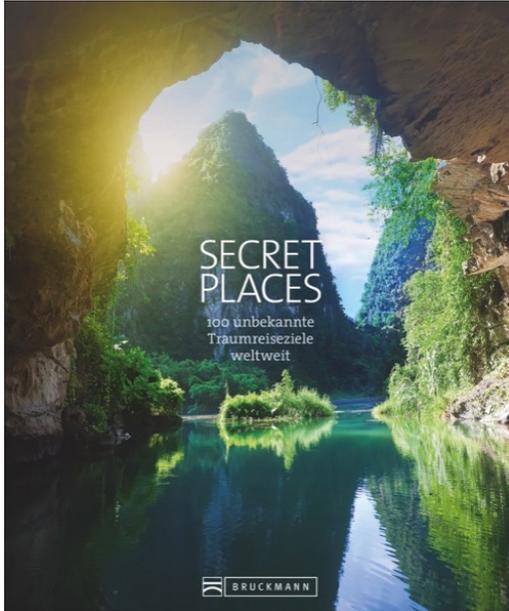

Stefan Hefele, born 1986, travels the world as an adventure and landscape photographer. His last publication for Bruckmann was the illustrated book ALPENWELTEN. He is a member of the jury for the EPSON International Pano Awards.

Eugen E. Hüsler, born 1944 in Zurich, has published over 100 travel, hiking, and via ferrata guides and illustrated books. He has travelled the Alps for over four decades, and particularly enjoys leaving the well-trodden paths behind. He is a close observer of current developments in mountain tourism.

- From hotels to ancient warpaths
- Richly informative texts on the history of the lost places from Alpine expert Eugen Hüsler
- Stefan Hefele’s opulently portrayed images invite us to immerse ourselves in the worlds of the past

The gateway to the Alps offers unique options for enjoying your motorhome. Revel in the freedom of travelling the way you want to, and explore the magic of exceptional places. GPS coordinates take you directly to spectacular sites amid unspoilt nature. To complete the perfect holiday experience, the author provides practical insiders' tips for exciting excursions and activities in the area.

Born in Kassel, Germany, in 1963, Torsten Berning lives in Belgium. He began to write travel memoirs and motorhome guides in 2012. Even after more than 250,000 kilometres, he and the family are still bitten by the motorhome bug and have now travelled to every corner of Europe. In his free time, the whisky connoisseur enjoys walking or cycling with his wife and his dog, following Goethe's philosophy that "the purpose of travel is not arrival, but travel itself".

Lofty Goals

The best 3000-metre peaks for hikers in the Eastern Alpine region

Markus und Janina Meier, Ernst Aigner

Explore the loveliest 3000-metre peaks suitable for hiking in the Eastern Alps. Many hikers view the 2000-metre mark as a kind of magic boundary, and no wonder; mountains that start with a “3” are truly awe-inspiring. Yet not all of them are so fearsome that hikers need to feel discouraged. This handbook for the Eastern Alpine region allows hikers to tackle numerous 3000-metre mountains. A particular pleasure for those with a yen for lofty goals!

Bavarian mountaineering couple Janina and Markus Meier both have been at home in the mountains since childhood; first hiking, then discovering a passion for climbing, Alpine tours and skiing. They met each other at the German Alpine Association, where they are trainers, and have lived in Dusslingen near Tübingen since 2013.

Peaks of Joy: The Dolomites

40 panoramic routes with spectacular views

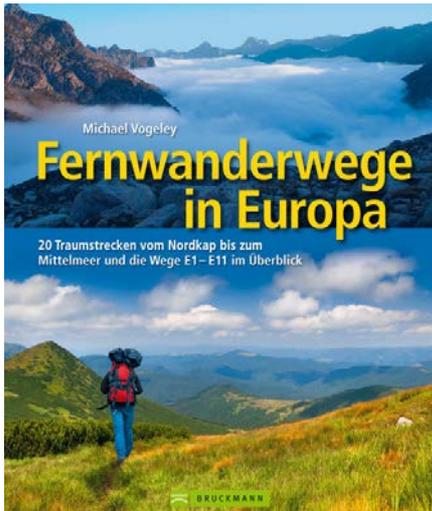

Mark Zahel

Vistas and visions of dizzying heights and plunging valleys are what the Dolomites are most famous for! Every year Mark Zahel heads into the mountains with his notebook and camera to explore routes in meticulous detail and capture moods and atmospheres. He is often drawn to the Italian region often dubbed the “queen of the Alps” – the Dolomites. Now Zahel has collected his tours with the finest views in a single guide, spanning famous summits but also taking in lesser-known trails offering stunning panoramas.

Mark Zahel, born in 1972, is an author and photographer specializing in hiking and mountaineering. The summers he spends in the mountains have resulted in over 30 books up until now, from large-format photography collections to practical guides, as well as countless articles and features for media including the prestigious climbing magazine,

Me, Korea and My Home.

Korean food is an up-and-coming trend – and what better ambassador for the country and its cuisine than Sarah Henke, Germany’s most fascinating top chef of the moment! Follow Sarah Henke as she travels through Korea, the country that is her home. A journey where she explores the roots of Korean food – and of her own background.

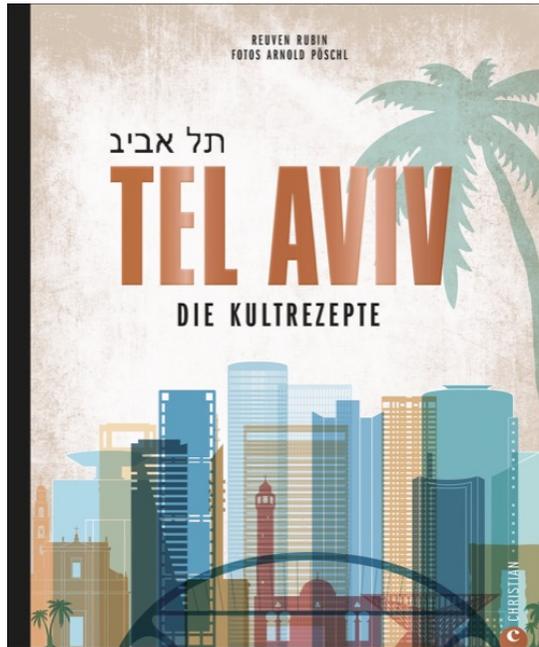

Born in Korea, Sarah Henke was adopted and came to Germany at the age of one-and-a-half. She grew up in the south of Lower Saxony; after leaving high school she trained as a chef and spent time at Schlosshotel Lerbach, in Portugal and at “Aqua” in Wolfsburg, Germany; she managed “Spices” on the German island of Sylt for three years, where she won a Michelin star. In 2015 Sarah opened “Yoso” in the German town of Andernach, where she serves Asian-inspired fusion cuisine categorized into the elements of fire, water, air and earth. For our book, she has brought together the best recipes from her Korean homeland.

- The first cookbook by and with the Gault&Millaud award-winning rising star of the year
- Up close and personal: A starred chef with an unusual story
- The first regional cuisine to fuse Korean food with the “four elements” concept

Iconic Tel Aviv

Tel Aviv, the vibrant metropolis on the shores of the Mediterranean, has plenty to offer lovers and explorers of the Orient. Globetrotters will thrill to its markets, straight out of the Arabian Nights, its delicious Arabic-Israeli cuisine, its pulsating nightlife and its architecture, designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The first cookbook based on Tel Aviv takes us on a journey of discovery through the city's kitchens, lifting saucepan lids to savour the rich tastes from over 100 recipes. We meet the people at their stoves and explore the vibrant city life of Tel Aviv.

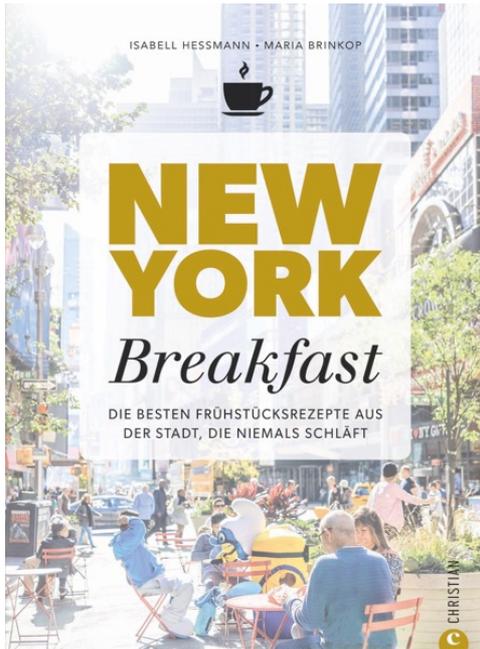

Berlin-born Liv Fleischhacker began to write about food and drink culture in 2014. Growing up bilingual between Berlin and Los Angeles, she writes in German and English. In 2017 she organized Berlin's first Jewish Food Week, "Nosh Berlin".

As a freelance photographer, Arnold Pöschl specializes in food, portraits and travel photography and works for an array of magazines, advertising agencies and publishers throughout Europe.

- For fans of the "Cult Recipes" series – the new dream destination of Tel Aviv
- Over 100 recipes for fans of Oriental cuisine

Nico loves cooking – but he only uses natural, unprocessed ingredients. It's a passion that he has transformed into his profession; his blog at www.paleo360.de offers daily updates on nutrition and health. A cookery book was the logical next step; after all, many people would love to eat more healthily but are unsure about how to make the change. Nico can confirm from his own experience that a paleo diet is the right way to ensure long-term health; after changing his diet, his bloodwork and physical endurance improved dramatically. Today he spends up to three hours a day in the kitchen to provide his readers with new inspiration and to demonstrate that healthy eating can be delicious too.
